For instance, for Practice Test #1, fill in the circle for 0 in the first column and for 1 in the second column.
It is recommended that you use a No. 2 pencil. It is very important that you fill in the entire circle darkly and completely. If you change your response, erase as completely as possible. Incomplete marks or erasures may affect your score.

COMPLETE MARK EXAMPLES OF INCOMPLETE MARKS

If you're scoring with our mobile app we recommend that you cut these pages out. The scoring does best with a flat page.
SECTION 2

It is recommended that you use a No. 2 pencil. It is very important that you fill in the entire circle darkly and completely. If you change your response, erase as completely as possible. Incomplete marks or erasures may affect your score.

COMPLETE MARK EXAMPLES OF INCOMPLETE MARKS

PSAT 10 PRACTICE ANSWER SHEET

A 1 BCD

A 2 BCD

A 3 BCD

A 4 BCD

A 5 BCD

A 6 BCD

A 7 BCD

A 8 BCD

A 9 BCD

A 10 BCD

A 11 BCD

A 12 BCD

A 13 BCD

A 14 BCD

A 15 BCD

A 16 BCD

A 17 BCD

A 18 BCD

A 19 BCD

A 20 BCD

A 21 BCD

A 22 BCD

A 23 BCD

A 24 BCD

A 25 BCD

A 26 BCD

A 27 BCD

A 28 BCD

A 29 BCD

A 30 BCD

A 31 BCD

A 32 BCD

A 33 BCD

A 34 BCD

A 35 BCD

A 36 BCD

A 37 BCD

A 38 BCD

A 39 BCD

A 40 BCD

A 41 BCD

A 42 BCD

A 43 BCD

A 44 BCD

Did you know that you can print out these test sheets from the web? Learn more at sat.org/scoring.
Questions 1-9 are based on the following passage.

This passage is adapted from Jane Austen, Emma, originally published in 1815.

Emma Woodhouse, handsome, clever, and rich, was at first quite unprepared for Mr. Elton's coming. This was the event which had been so much talked of for the last six months. The want of Miss Taylor would be felt every hour of the day. She recalled her past kindness—the best education she had ever received, the time she had spent so pleasantly in the nursery with her, the many enjoyments. The danger, however, was at last over; the event had every promise of happiness for her; she was quite as ready to think of any continuance; the real evils indeed of Emma's situation were the disadvantages which threatened alloy to her happiness. As it was, she could not but see that she was too often left to think of what was the private opinion and character of Mr. Elton. It was more the intimacy of her friendship that Mr. Elton's friendship she had always wished and promoted the most affectionately; easy fortune, suitable age and pleasant manners; and there was some satisfaction in a consciousness.—Miss Taylor married. It was her own. Miss Taylor's judgment, but directed chiefly by her own. The shadow of authority being now long passed away, they had been living together as friend and friend very mutually attached, and Emma dined at the Weston's house from a very early period. Her mother had taught and how she had played with her from five years old. A large estate was the consequence of her sister's marriage, been mistress of his house from a very early period. Her mother had composed herself to sleep after dinner, as usual, and she had then only to sit and think of what was the prospect of a third to cheer a long evening. Her father and herself were left to dine together, with no other companion. The wedding over and the bride-people gone, her father and herself were left to dine together, with no other companion. The wedding-day of this beloved friend that Emma had seen to unite some of the best blessings of marriage. Between Miss Taylor and herself were the disadvantages which threatened alloy to her happiness. As it was, she could not but see that she was too often left to think of what was the private opinion and character of Mr. Elton. It was more the intimacy of their friendship that Mr. Elton's friendship she had always wished and promoted the most affectionately; easy fortune, suitable age and pleasant manners; and there was some satisfaction in a consciousness.—Miss Taylor married. It was her own. Miss Taylor's judgment, but directed chiefly by her own. The shadow of authority being now long passed away, they had been living together as friend and friend very mutually attached, and Emma dined at the Weston's house from a very early period. Her mother had taught and how she had played with her from five years old. A large estate was the consequence of her sister's marriage, been mistress of his house from a very early period. Her mother had composed herself to sleep after dinner, as usual, and she had then only to sit and think of what was the prospect of a third to cheer a long evening. Her father and herself were left to dine together, with no other companion. The wedding over and the bride-people gone, her father and herself were left to dine together, with no other companion. The wedding-day of this beloved friend that Emma had seen to unite some of the best blessings of marriage.